DUN'S REVIEW OF THE WEEK

Larger Volume of Business Than Ever Before at This Season.

MERCHANTS ARE EVERYWHERE HOPEFUL

Trade in the South Only Fair, But Improving-Northwestern Country Banks Well Supplied with Money.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30;- [Special Telegram to THE BEE. 1-R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Business continued unprecedented in vol ume and satisfactory in character. Measured by the clearing house returns the trade exceeds that of a year ago by 254 per cent in amount and that means a volume of business larger than in any other year at this season. The tone in commercial circles throughout the country is noneful and the money mar kets are now comparatively easy at nearly all points. The dry goods trade is, on the whole, satisfactory for that reason. increasing demand for wool though still confined to actual needs for consumption proves that the current prices, low as they are, do not arrest production. The trade in boots and shoe leather is somewhat retarded by monetary uncertaintics, and there is, besides, some reason to suppose that the consumption may not be quite up to expectations. Sales in the northwest, judging from Chicago reports, appear to exceed last year's, but it is doubtful whether eastern sales are larger, and from Philadelphia and Baltimore come some indi-cations that southern sales may not be as large.

The manufacture and sale of machinery, implements and tools seems to be larger than ever and, while copper, tin and lead are all a shade lower for the week, the consumption of each is very heavy.

The embarrassment in the iron and steel manufacture and trade is now clearly perceived to be the result of a marked shrinkage in demands for consumption. Bar iron is very duil. The demand for plates is very much smaller than was expected, and for sheets irregular and unsatisfactory, while structural iron is duil and lower. There is very little doing in rails.
Accounts from southern cities indicate only a fair trade, with an improvement at Atlanta and a slight improvement at Jacksonville, but increasing receipts and lower prices for cotton at New Orleans.

At St. Louis business is apparently strong and building promises to begin earlier than usual. At Kansas City and Denver trade is fair; at Omaha dull, but at St. Paul excellent, snow having helped, and the flour trade at Minneapolis is aided by the rise in wheat. The lumber trade there is good.

At Cincinnati manufactures are active, especially in machinery. At Detroit iron is weak but at Cleveland in good demand, and at Pittsburg there is no special change, though the glass trade is rather dull. Chicago notes a larger trade than a year ago in nearly everything excepting dressed beef, the gains in hides and wool being especially heavy, and in dry goods and clothing sales have increased with better collections. Throughout the northwest it is noteworthy that country banks are well supplied with money and, while the demand is brisk at Chicago, the market is easier. Philadelphia reports a good demand for combing weel; encouragement in the dry goods and shoe trades and an improvement in paper, because of the government award to Pennsylvania makers.

The startling death of Secretary Windom

The startling death of Secretary Windom caused a sudden falling in the price of silver, in London, it was stated in dispatches, but no change whatever in the financial policy of the government is likely to result, though it the government is likely to result, though it may easily happen that a successor, however able, may not possess the fertility of resource which Mr. Windem has shown in meeting the emergencies. The operations of the treasury during the week have in no way affected the money market, which is well supplied. Speculation accordingly grows more active and wheat has advanced 3%c, corn 3%c, cats ½c and coffee 15c per 100 pounds, but cotton is 1-16c lower and oil 2%c lower.

The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days num-the country during the last seven days numer 320, as compared with 380 last week. For the corresponding week of last year the fig-ures were 201.

"THERMIDOR."

Its Interdiction is the Sensation of the Day in Paris.

[Copyright 1891 by James Gordon Bennett, 1 Paris, Jan. 30.—[New York Herald Cable -Special to Tuz Bzz.1-Sardou's "Thermi dor" has furnished the most thrilling sensation since Boulangism flared and died. All Paris is talking of the interdiction.

"I do not think that the interdiction of my piece- "Thermidor' will be revoked," were Viotorien Sardou's last words to me last evening as I left him after an hour's discussion on the great sensation of the day.

Just at that moment a servant had entered with a saiver piled high with letters. Sardou took a handful, saying: "I know exactly what there is in them. They are all letters of sympathy—some from perfect strangers. They have been coming in all day. Look at these," and he opened a drawer in his desk crammed full of telegrams and letters which came from politicians, men of letters, and from representatives of all classes, but all similar in condemning the interdiction of "Thermidor." Some writers expressed their anger against the authors of the disturbances; some bid the illustrious dramatist to have a bold heart and all would come right, while others explained to him that he was the victim of political antagonism between two members of the ministry.

"Then don't you think everything will be "Then den't you think everything will be settled in the chambers today!" I asked.

"No," he replied, "I do not. I foresee that it will be one of those debates which will end by leaving things just as they are. Constans will be justified in his course, Bourgers in his, and nice things will be said of everybody, but it will be said that the piece created a disturbance in a public place and therefore must not be communed."

"And what will you do then!"

"It Why they don't care a sou about me.

"If Why they don't care a sou about me.
They will say, 'Ah, Sardon can look out for himself.' I shall be able to say after I have heard the result of the debate, what I shall

"Will you, in case the interdiction is sus-tained, have the piece played in some other theater!"

"No," replied Sardou, with earnest decision; "no, I wrote 'Thermidor' for the Theater Francaise, and it shall be played at the Theatre Francaise or not at all."

"But you will not be content?"

"No, I look upon the whole affair as an outrage. It comes of political jealonsy." Here Sardou gave his version of the trouble, which he said without doubt originated in the jealousy of two statesmen, and dated back to the time when there was talk of withdrawing sunvention from the opera. He considers DeLessagaray was employed by a prominent politician to come down with a number of men and raise a disturbance. men and raise a disturbance.
"You are a thorough republican, are you

"Yes, I am a liberal republican. Claretie was always in the time of the empire an arcent republican, and ail of the members of the committee of the Francaise, one and all, would have protested against 'Thermidor' had it been anti-republican."
"Wouldn't they have felt some diffidence in protesting to a man like you?"
"Not at all. But it is not they alone that saw no harm in it. Bourgers also read it, and he handed it to the president, who saw no harm in it. It was also read pover by the minister of censorship, but never a word of objection was raised. Having thus guaranteed the piece from all danger, the Theatre Francaise launched put into an enormous expenditure to produce put into an enormous expenditure to produce it, but what did it avail! Although neither president nor minister of censorship could see any harm in Thermidor, yet, just be-cause a few rowdies, headed by a communist, object to my denunciation of Robespierre and object to my denunciation of Robespierre and terror, the piece is stopped. Another point is this: According to law, the audience in a theater is precluded from whistling or objecting or making a noise during the performance of a piece. Between the acts they can object and show as much disapprobation as they think proper. Therefore I want to know how it was that those who were thus acting illegally were not stormed to help reacting illegally were not stopped to help re-publicanism? I hold that all true republicans should be grateful to me, for I showed in "Thermidor' that terror and tyranny were to-tally disconnected with and discountenanced tally disconnected with and discountenanced by all true republicans. It has always seemed to me that that is the very thing which all the republicans would wish to have shown."

"Have you ever had such trouble before with your piays!"

"Yes, twice." replied Sardou, "and they are remarkable examples. The first was under the empire, when I wrote a piece called 'Le Diables Noires,' when I introduced into the piece the character of a man who stole some diamonds from his mistress the play was interdicted very suddouly, and the play was interdicted very suddenly, and I could not make out why. This was in 1863. The year following Marochal Valilant came into power and my play was at once released from ban. I then heard that his predecessor on reading the play had imagined that the diamond stealer of my piece seemed to fit the adventures of his brother-in-law.

The second case was in 1872, when I produced a piece called 'Uncle Sam.' which was censured because it was deemed that it would hurt the feelings of Americans. It was a skit on the manner of Americans, but there was nothing offensive in it. The amusing part of it was that in order to test the judgment of my censors I sent the piece to New York, and there it was played with the greatest success. When it was brought back here the censure was removed."

"And 'Thermidor' is going over to Amer-"Yes; Frohman is going to produce it, and I am sure the Americans will revenge me for the treatment I have received here."

DUE TO CARELESSNESS.

Verdict of the Coroner's Jury in the Peter Duffy Case.

The coroner's inquest in the case of Peter Duffy, who was killed by a motor train at the corner of Eighteenth and Burt streets on January 27, was completed yesterday afternoon.

Charles Sexauer, a jeweler who lives at 724 North Twenty-first street, was called and stated that he saw the accident. He thought the motor car struck the hind wheel of the buggy and knocked Duffy out. He said he did not hear the bell on the motor as the train crossed Eighteenth street.

James Garoner, a machinist who lives at 1811 Cumming street, said he was crossing Burt street about half way between Seventeenth and Eighteenth when the motor and the buggy collided. He claims that the motor train was running at a very rapid rate of speed, and that the buggy had crossed the track all but the rear wheels and the horse was heading almost in the same direction that the train was running when the buggy was struck by the motor. He said that Duffy fell out when the motor struck the buggy and was shoved or dragged about eighteen steps by the motor

Lou Harris, a colored woman who was aboard the motor car, stated that she thought Duffy fell out before the buggy crossed the track, and that the motor ran about ten feet

The jury returned a verdict which states that Peter Duffy came to his death from injuries received by being crushed under a motor car at the corner of Eighteenth and Burt streets, and that his death was the result of his cours read deliving and that the sult of his own rash driving, and that the street railway company was guilty of care-lessness in failing to sound the gong and by ranning too fast while crossing Eighteenth

The Silver Pool Investigation. WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—In the silver pool investigation today Dockery read a prepared statement giving more in detail the facts testified to by him Wednesday. He said he was anxious to beat the force bill. It was not mown that if Cameron was re-elected he would vote for it, but his attitude of uncertainty led Dockery to hope that he would vote against it. He (Dockery) did not wish just before the election in Pennsylvania to just before the election in Pennsylvania to make public any private business transaction of the senator which might be legitimate and proper, but before he could show it to be such it could be used by political enemies to his detriment. Dockery had information that Cameron had purchased silver, but no knowledge that he was connected with any pool nor of any impropriety in his purchase. Dockery thought it only justice to Cameron that the matter should not be made public by him when it might be used by Cameron's political opponents to his injury before he could have an opportunity to explain the facts. There was no agreement or understanding There was no agreement or understanding between Cameron and himself or any other person that his (Dockery's) testimony should be delayed. He acted on his own judgment induced solely by the reasons stated above.

UNION PACIFIC CHANGES

General Manager Clark Says They Are Dictated by Common Sense.

"The action of Salt Lake City in making such a disturbance about the reported removal of the office of the superintendent of the mountain division of the Union Pacific is entirely uncalled for," remarked General Manager Clark to THE BEE. "They are unduly alarmed and no such changes as they speak of are contemplated. The office of the superintendent and probably that of the train dispatcher will be removed to Ogden, but the office of the assistant superintendent and all the other offices will remain where they are.

"This change will not be made because the people of Salt Lake have been kicking about freight and passenger rates; on the contrary, the change was determined on some time ago, before anything was said about rates. When I took charge of the road I saw at once that the office of the superintendent of the mountain division was in the wrong place. Instead of being on the main line it was several miles away, on a branch, and I suggested that, as soon as the change could he conveniently made, the office be removed

"There has never been any intention of re-moving the shops or any other office except that of the superintendent and probably that of the dispatcher.

"The change will be made for purely busi-

"The change will be made for purely business reasons. The office will not be removed because it is at Salt Lake, but because it should be at Ogden on the main line, and it would be removed there without regard to its present location, simply because common sense and the principles of railroading demand that it should be at that point.

"As far as Salt Lake is concerned, the change will not affect, that city and they

"As har as Sait Lake is concernee, the change will not affect that city, and they have stirred up a muss without any cause. "Speaking of removals," continued Mr. Clark, "the office of the superintendent of motive power has been ordered removed to Omaha for the simple reason that an office of that sort should be as near the general headquarters as possible, where the superintendent may be at all times accessible and where we may know at all times just what is going on. His assistant will be at Cheyenne in charge of the shops, etc., and things will move on just the same as before, with no change as far as the public is concerned. "These changes are not made at random, nor to 'retaliate' against anybody. They are made for the best interests of the road, as mon sense would seem to indicate."

MERRIMENT AND DISASTER.

One Starts With a Coasting Party, the

Other Meets It. A party of students at Bellevue college met with an accident while coasting Thursday evening, the results of which were of a very serious and dangerous nature. The long hill leading to the college was thronged by students and visitors from the village, who were enjoying the coasting. which had been made excellent by the fall of snow and sleet. The track became somewhat cut up by the large number of sleds that were in use and about 5:20 o'clock a party of young ladies and gentlemen started on a long traverse to break a new path. The leaders chose a side of the hill east of the college that adjoins the city park, which is inclosed by a barbed wire

The party started with a cheer of mirth which was speedily changed to cries of horror and pain as the traverse struck a hole in the hillside, became unmanageable and threw the coasters into the barbed wire fence. In the collision the traverse struck a post of the fence and broke it off at the ground. Four of the coasters were hurt, twoof them seriously.

She was removed to the college and a physician sum-moned to attend her injuries. The broken limb was set, and yesterday the young lady was resting easily.

Miss Mary Connor had her right hand badly lacerated on the barbs of the fence.

After the coasting party had been taken care of at the college, a defective lamp in the dormitery caught fire. Two young ladies who discovered the blaze called a couple of young gentlemen to take charge of the burning lamp. News of the danger spread, however, and several young ladies fainted from fright. The lamp was thrown out of the window and a fire narrowly averted.
